

CALLED TO ORDER.

And Organized for the Work Before Them.

Jewett's Friends Confident, Payne and Randall Booming, and Field and Hendricks Hopeful.

The Banners Flying, the Bands Playing, Throats Hoarse With Shouting.

Showing That There is Life in the Democracy and a Full Supply of Backbone.

With Now and Then Mysterious References to Tilden, the Victim.

AN EARNEST ASSEMBLY Who Have in View the Rescue of the Country From Misrule and Corruption.

THE GRAND ENTRY OF THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC RACE.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12 m.—At 12 o'clock to-day the democratic convention of 1880 met in Music Hall, Cincinnati. There was something dramatic in the coming together of the leaders of this party, that has survived civil war, held together through twenty years of hopeless defeat and public suspicion, rallied about principle and not plunder, and at last finds itself upon the threshold of national victory. The personnel of the convention is fine, the southern delegates showing better blood and appearance, the western more rude and loose material, and the eastern men quiet and possessed, and the New York men showing up a smart sprinkling of rowdiness. There are few notable figures in the delegations, the leaders preferring to work through indirect counsels. The most conspicuous southerner led South Carolina for Bayard, and pressed his old associate with a ringing voice to join the company and march with their general. Neither Randall nor Wallace appeared on the floor. Mr. Grimes says: "I will never support Tilden, and he has no chance. It will be Field, in my opinion." Piero Young says: "If Field is not nominated on the fourth or fifth ballot a New York or Indiana man will be rushed through—Tilden or McDonald." I am for Field, but I can never vote against Tilden, Collier, and D. St. John, et al. If the convention is to be held in New York, Tilden should be nominated with more enthusiasm than was ever known in a convention. As it is I think the fight will be between Field and Bayard, and I'm for Field.

Mr. Harrell says the old ticket would be nominated with a rush if Hendricks would consent to take the second place. There is a strong and growing feeling for it.

General Young has been made chairman of the committee on credentials, and says he will report at 10 o'clock sharp to-morrow, and that the balloting will be commenced to-morrow.

The Butler-Abbott factions have come to an understanding, which weakens Bayard, and Kelly will be shut out, which weakens Bayard by 35 votes. The vote against Tilden in the national convention was 37 to 30.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XIII.

ATLANTA, GA., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 23, 1880.

NO. 7.

Special Editorial Correspondence Constitution.

Cincinnati, June 22, 1:08 p.m.—After Mr. Hendricks' speech, Neil S. Brown, reading clerk, read the list of officers of the temporary organization.

The appointments were confirmed.

The roll of the last convention were confirmed.

The roll of states was called for members of committees.

On motion of Mr. Martin, of Delaware, the only committee ordered are permanent organization, resolutions, and credentials.

S. W. S.

UNTIL TO-MORROW.

Special Editorial Correspondence Constitution.

Cincinnati, June 22, 2:30 p.m.—A resolution was adopted that when the convention adjourned it be to 10 a.m. to-morrow.

Mr. Hill, of Ohio, offered a motion on recognizing the services of the democratic press and directing the admission of all representatives of the democratic press who make application.

Mr. Scott, of Pennsylvania, opposed it and said that this explained why the New Yorkers had not yet united on a new man. If his letter had been published a fortnight ago so that a popular effect could have been seen by the delegates, he would have swayed the convention. It is now known where Tilden failed to carry his late convention, his courage and his heart broke and he said, "Gentlemen, I am out of this fight." This is repeated to me by a person who heard it. He wrote his letter promptly, and withheld it simply that Waterman might have his name with which to save himself in the Kentucky convention of the 17th. He made no effort in Georgia, and none in North Carolina.

H. W. G.

THE GEORGIA DELEGATION OF TILDEN.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 2:40 p.m.—A telegram will be printed in the Enquirer to-morrow signed by Messrs. Maddox, Finch, and Tilden, and the Atlanta Journal addressed to the Georgia delegation, announcing that Tilden's great letter and magazine issue have produced great enthusiasm and made his nomination finally desired. Similar messages come to the delegations from elsewhere.

Some Georgia opinions are given here:

Mr. Grimes says: "I will never support Tilden, and he has no chance. It will be Field, in my opinion."

Piero Young says: "If Field is not nominated on the fourth or fifth ballot a New York or Indiana man will be rushed through—Tilden or McDonald."

General Young has been made chairman of the committee on credentials, and says he will report at 10 o'clock sharp to-morrow, and that the balloting will be commenced to-morrow.

The Butler-Abbott factions have come to an understanding, which weakens Bayard, and Kelly will be shut out, which weakens Bayard by 35 votes. The vote against Tilden in the national convention was 37 to 30.

H. W. G.

PAYNE HOLDING THE FORT.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 10:30 p.m.—The appointment of the temporary organization to harmonize and divide the states is greatly approved, and removed one obstacle to a peaceful organization of the convention. It is not known how each will vote, except that the Abbott wing is pretty certain to support Bayard.

The Radical movement does not impress the southern delegations, viewing it now, where or when to expect to get struck by the presidential lightning. I cannot imagine in fact there is no man named in this race but has a fair prospect for the nomination and would be easier elected than S. J. R.

Our Georgia delegation is "sitting still in its boat." The mist of the dayning, "big with the fate of— and the nation," when it will not sufficiently clear to give them a fair view of their proper course, depend upon it they are acting with coolness, judgment and watchfulness and no blunders await them to avert them from their purpose. That purpose is to vote for and seek to nominate the man who will be the leader of the nation.

The committee on organization agreed to Senator Stearns, of Massachusetts, as the convention, and put Mark Hardin, of Georgia, as the chairman of the committee on credentials.

THE TILDEN ROOM SURVIVING.

At this hour I find the Tilden room sub-siding. The old ticket room, after consideration, is being rejected as unavailing. By the hour for balloting to-morrow I think it will have expended its enthusiasm. Still there are some prominent men apprehensive of its fate. Hon. A. Parker, of New York, told me he was afraid that Tilden would be the nominee, but said we could go far and have worse. While not favoring him he believes he could be elected. New York's going to Payne is considered to be only taking two steps instead of one.

General Gordon says the impression prevails generally with those whom he has consulted that Tilden's letter was an abridgment adopted in the campaign. If so, I predict that it will prove a most potent agency among the southern states. The men who will be needed in such an emergency; a man strong enough to rally the moral support of all honest men and the strength of purpose and courage to take his seat.

Major Bickham, of the Dayton Jon. Rail, a gentleman who visited Atlanta with Hayes in 1877 and had his stalwart soul hardened by the sight of a miniature "rebel flag" on the banner of the City Guard, has just been with me. He interviewed me and said, "If you will consent they can put him through without a ballot. Mr. Seymour urges that his previous letters and telegrams were conclusive and that he cannot consent to my what his decision would be should the convention nominate him and leave the party's interest dependent upon his action thereon."

INDIANA TILDEN.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 9:00 p.m.—The New York delegation has just determined by a vote of 32 to 8 to cast the solid vote for Payne, of Ohio. Last night the vote was 32 to 38 and the change is due to Tilden's closest friends. It is suspected that this is done to deadlock the convention that at last may be brought to the front at last. If New York had waited on English he could have been nominated, but Payne, it is believed, cannot. He has, however, made by the unit rule Ohio and New York solid, a total of 114 delegates, and efforts are being made to unit New Jersey and Connecticut to-night on him.

The Tilden feeling is growing to fever heat, and the mention of the old man's name in the corridors or streets always provokes a volley of hurrahs.

The Payne movement is the sensation now and resembles Grant at Chicago. Two powerful states under the unit rule and managed by two or three leaders are for him, while the mass of the delegates are against him. There may be a fight the unit rule to-morrow.

H. W. G.

SKIRMISHING THE FIELD.

THE CURRENT FOR TILDEN.—The Chair of the Old Guard Committee—Payne's Friends.

A RANDAL RULE.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12:15 p.m.—The front of the hall at 12 o'clock was jammed with people, and the scene was one of intense excitement. The Randall association and the American club of Philadelphia, headed by Alderman McKim, have just attempted to force themselves upon the platform, and the chairman, instructed his friends to "head off" the railin', and the railin' was directed at the railin'.

Frank Landers, candidate for governor of Indiana, is active against both Tilden and Bayard. Of the latter, he says his financial record would damage it, if it did not kill the party in Indiana in both the October and November elections.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATIONS.

Speaking is now going on from the balconies of the Burnet and Gibson hotels. At the former an Indiana speaker said it was agreed when Hendricks accepted the second in 1878 that the unit rule would be adopted in 1880; that the unit rule was lively and enthusiastic. It was easy to see, however, that the crowd was that of mean business, and did not stop over easy. The absence of very numerous candidates resulted in a lack of much whistling. The George Washington speech at right to New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Missouri, with Florida and Indiana to the front. H. W. G.

THE FIRST CHURNS OF THE DAY.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 1:00 p.m.—The delegation of the hall are not unwise, and Mr. Jackson's portrait, with many others, was hung on the walls, fronting the delegations to-night. They are Mr. Seymour's. The Georgia delegation is "sitting still in its boat." The old ticket room, after consideration, is being rejected as unavailing. By the hour for balloting to-morrow I think it will have expended its enthusiasm. Still there are some prominent men apprehensive of its fate. Hon. A. Parker, of New York, told me he was afraid that Tilden would be the nominee, but said we could go far and have worse. While not favoring him he believes he could be elected. New York's going to Payne is considered to be only taking two steps instead of one.

General Gordon says the impression prevails generally with those whom he has consulted that Tilden's letter was an abridgment adopted in the campaign. If so, I predict that it will prove a most potent agency among the southern states. The men who will be needed in such an emergency; a man strong enough to rally the moral support of all honest men and the strength of purpose and courage to take his seat.

Major Bickham, of the Dayton Jon. Rail, a gentleman who visited Atlanta with Hayes in 1877 and had his stalwart soul hardened by the sight of a miniature "rebel flag" on the banner of the City Guard, has just been with me. He interviewed me and said, "If you will consent they can put him through without a ballot. Mr. Seymour urges that his previous letters and telegrams were conclusive and that he cannot consent to my what his decision would be should the convention nominate him and leave the party's interest dependent upon his action thereon."

INDIANA TILDEN.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12:15 p.m.—The front of the hall at 12 o'clock was jammed with people, and the scene was one of intense excitement. The Randall association and the American club of Philadelphia, headed by Alderman McKim, have just attempted to force themselves upon the platform, and the chairman, instructed his friends to "head off" the railin', and the railin' was directed at the railin'.

Frank Landers, candidate for governor of Indiana, is active against both Tilden and Bayard. Of the latter, he says his financial record would damage it, if it did not kill the party in Indiana in both the October and November elections.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATIONS.

Speaking is now going on from the balconies of the Burnet and Gibson hotels. At the former an Indiana speaker said it was agreed when Hendricks accepted the second in 1878 that the unit rule would be adopted in 1880; that the unit rule was lively and enthusiastic. It was easy to see, however, that the crowd was that of mean business, and did not stop over easy. The absence of very numerous candidates resulted in a lack of much whistling. The George Washington speech at right to New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Missouri, with Florida and Indiana to the front. H. W. G.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12:15 p.m.—The front of the hall at 12 o'clock was jammed with people, and the scene was one of intense excitement. The Randall association and the American club of Philadelphia, headed by Alderman McKim, have just attempted to force themselves upon the platform, and the chairman, instructed his friends to "head off" the railin', and the railin' was directed at the railin'.

Frank Landers, candidate for governor of Indiana, is active against both Tilden and Bayard. Of the latter, he says his financial record would damage it, if it did not kill the party in Indiana in both the October and November elections.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATIONS.

Speaking is now going on from the balconies of the Burnet and Gibson hotels. At the former an Indiana speaker said it was agreed when Hendricks accepted the second in 1878 that the unit rule would be adopted in 1880; that the unit rule was lively and enthusiastic. It was easy to see, however, that the crowd was that of mean business, and did not stop over easy. The absence of very numerous candidates resulted in a lack of much whistling. The George Washington speech at right to New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Missouri, with Florida and Indiana to the front. H. W. G.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12:15 p.m.—The front of the hall at 12 o'clock was jammed with people, and the scene was one of intense excitement. The Randall association and the American club of Philadelphia, headed by Alderman McKim, have just attempted to force themselves upon the platform, and the chairman, instructed his friends to "head off" the railin', and the railin' was directed at the railin'.

Frank Landers, candidate for governor of Indiana, is active against both Tilden and Bayard. Of the latter, he says his financial record would damage it, if it did not kill the party in Indiana in both the October and November elections.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATIONS.

Speaking is now going on from the balconies of the Burnet and Gibson hotels. At the former an Indiana speaker said it was agreed when Hendricks accepted the second in 1878 that the unit rule would be adopted in 1880; that the unit rule was lively and enthusiastic. It was easy to see, however, that the crowd was that of mean business, and did not stop over easy. The absence of very numerous candidates resulted in a lack of much whistling. The George Washington speech at right to New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Missouri, with Florida and Indiana to the front. H. W. G.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12:15 p.m.—The front of the hall at 12 o'clock was jammed with people, and the scene was one of intense excitement. The Randall association and the American club of Philadelphia, headed by Alderman McKim, have just attempted to force themselves upon the platform, and the chairman, instructed his friends to "head off" the railin', and the railin' was directed at the railin'.

Frank Landers, candidate for governor of Indiana, is active against both Tilden and Bayard. Of the latter, he says his financial record would damage it, if it did not kill the party in Indiana in both the October and November elections.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATIONS.

Speaking is now going on from the balconies of the Burnet and Gibson hotels. At the former an Indiana speaker said it was agreed when Hendricks accepted the second in 1878 that the unit rule would be adopted in 1880; that the unit rule was lively and enthusiastic. It was easy to see, however, that the crowd was that of mean business, and did not stop over easy. The absence of very numerous candidates resulted in a lack of much whistling. The George Washington speech at right to New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Missouri, with Florida and Indiana to the front. H. W. G.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

SPRINGFIELD CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CONSTITUTION.

CINCINNATI, June 22, 12:15 p.m.—The front of the hall at 12 o'clock was jammed with people, and the scene was one of intense excitement. The Randall association and the American club of Philadelphia, headed by Alderman McKim, have just attempted to force themselves upon the platform, and the chairman, instructed his friends to "head off" the railin', and the railin' was directed at the railin'.

Frank Landers, candidate for governor of Indiana, is active against both Tilden and Bayard. Of the latter, he says his financial record would damage it, if it did not kill the party in Indiana in both the October and November elections.

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATIONS.

Speaking is now going on from the balconies of the Burnet and Gibson hotels. At the former an Indiana speaker said it was agreed when Hendricks accepted the second in 1878 that the unit rule would be adopted in 1880; that the unit rule was lively and enthusiastic. It was easy to see, however, that the crowd was that of mean business, and did not stop over easy. The absence of very numerous candidates resulted in a lack of much whistling. The George Washington speech at right to New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Missouri, with Florida and Indiana to the front. H. W. G.

THE TILDEN BANNER.

COTTON AND WEATHER.

Corporation, Marshall, Atlanta, in Liverpool
Tuesday, 21, 1880, by the New York, in Atlanta, 11.

WEATHER. - The weather was good to south Atlantic states, Tennessee and Ohio valley partly cloudy weather, possibly followed by occasional rain, stationary temperature and barometer.

DAILY WEATHER REPORT.
GENERAL CLIMATE, U. S. A.
ATLANTA, June 22, 1880, P. M.
An observation taken at the same moment of actual time.

NAME OF STATION.

ATLANTA.

Augusta.

Calgary.

Indiana.

Illinoian.

Mass.

New Orleans.

Penns.

St. Louis.

100 per cent, being complete saturation.

FORCE OF WIND: Light, 1 to 2 miles an hour; moderate, 2 to 4 miles; strong,
4 to 6; violent, 6 to 10; destructive,
8 to 10, to 20, inclusive.

Local Weather Report.
ATLANTA, G. A., June 22, 1880.

Temperature, 70°; Barometric pressure, 30.01; Wind, E. N. E.; Wind force, 4; Wind direction, N. E.; Weather, Fair.

60° to 70°; Fair.

70° to 80°; Fair.

80° to 90°; Fair.

90° to 100°; Fair.

100° to 110°; Fair.

110° to 120°; Fair.

120° to 130°; Fair.

130° to 140°; Fair.

140° to 150°; Fair.

150° to 160°; Fair.

160° to 170°; Fair.

170° to 180°; Fair.

180° to 190°; Fair.

190° to 200°; Fair.

200° to 210°; Fair.

210° to 220°; Fair.

220° to 230°; Fair.

230° to 240°; Fair.

240° to 250°; Fair.

250° to 260°; Fair.

260° to 270°; Fair.

270° to 280°; Fair.

280° to 290°; Fair.

290° to 300°; Fair.

300° to 310°; Fair.

310° to 320°; Fair.

320° to 330°; Fair.

330° to 340°; Fair.

340° to 350°; Fair.

350° to 360°; Fair.

360° to 370°; Fair.

370° to 380°; Fair.

380° to 390°; Fair.

390° to 400°; Fair.

400° to 410°; Fair.

410° to 420°; Fair.

420° to 430°; Fair.

430° to 440°; Fair.

440° to 450°; Fair.

450° to 460°; Fair.

460° to 470°; Fair.

470° to 480°; Fair.

480° to 490°; Fair.

490° to 500°; Fair.

500° to 510°; Fair.

510° to 520°; Fair.

520° to 530°; Fair.

530° to 540°; Fair.

540° to 550°; Fair.

550° to 560°; Fair.

560° to 570°; Fair.

580° to 590°; Fair.

600° to 610°; Fair.

610° to 620°; Fair.

620° to 630°; Fair.

630° to 640°; Fair.

640° to 650°; Fair.

650° to 660°; Fair.

660° to 670°; Fair.

670° to 680°; Fair.

680° to 690°; Fair.

690° to 700°; Fair.

700° to 710°; Fair.

710° to 720°; Fair.

720° to 730°; Fair.

730° to 740°; Fair.

740° to 750°; Fair.

750° to 760°; Fair.

760° to 770°; Fair.

770° to 780°; Fair.

780° to 790°; Fair.

790° to 800°; Fair.

800° to 810°; Fair.

810° to 820°; Fair.

820° to 830°; Fair.

830° to 840°; Fair.

840° to 850°; Fair.

850° to 860°; Fair.

860° to 870°; Fair.

870° to 880°; Fair.

880° to 890°; Fair.

890° to 900°; Fair.

900° to 910°; Fair.

910° to 920°; Fair.

920° to 930°; Fair.

930° to 940°; Fair.

940° to 950°; Fair.

950° to 960°; Fair.

960° to 970°; Fair.

970° to 980°; Fair.

980° to 990°; Fair.

990° to 1000°; Fair.

1000° to 1010°; Fair.

1010° to 1020°; Fair.

1020° to 1030°; Fair.

1030° to 1040°; Fair.

1040° to 1050°; Fair.

1050° to 1060°; Fair.

1060° to 1070°; Fair.

1070° to 1080°; Fair.

1080° to 1090°; Fair.

1090° to 1100°; Fair.

1100° to 1110°; Fair.

1110° to 1120°; Fair.

1120° to 1130°; Fair.

1130° to 1140°; Fair.

1140° to 1150°; Fair.

1150° to 1160°; Fair.

1160° to 1170°; Fair.

1170° to 1180°; Fair.

1180° to 1190°; Fair.

1190° to 1200°; Fair.

1200° to 1210°; Fair.

1210° to 1220°; Fair.

1220° to 1230°; Fair.

1230° to 1240°; Fair.

1240° to 1250°; Fair.

1250° to 1260°; Fair.

1260° to 1270°; Fair.

1270° to 1280°; Fair.

1280° to 1290°; Fair.

1290° to 1300°; Fair.

1300° to 1310°; Fair.

1310° to 1320°; Fair.

1320° to 1330°; Fair.

1330° to 1340°; Fair.

1340° to 1350°; Fair.

1350° to 1360°; Fair.

1360° to 1370°; Fair.

1370° to 1380°; Fair.

1380° to 1390°; Fair.

1390° to 1400°; Fair.

1400° to 1410°; Fair.

1410° to 1420°; Fair.

1420° to 1430°; Fair.

1430° to 1440°; Fair.

1440° to 1450°; Fair.

1450° to 1460°; Fair.

1460° to 1470°; Fair.

1470° to 1480°; Fair.

1480° to 1490°; Fair.

1490° to 1500°; Fair.

1500° to 1510°; Fair.

1510° to 1520°; Fair.

1